Shall the Soldier's Family Have Bread?

A public meeting of the citizens of Talladega County has been called and the notice will be found in our paper this week to consider the important question as to how the Soldier's family is to be supplied with bread. Wheat has now reached the almost fabulous price of seven dollars per bushel. The soldiers eleven dollars per month will not buy them bread. The appropriation made by the State will not enable them to get it. The complaint is moreover made that they cannot buy wheat with money. It is said that farmers do not want to sell wheat to a soldier or a soldiers family at six or seven dollars per bushel and that they cannot purchase at all. The soldier and his family being thus placed in a worse position than the speculator even if they had a pocket full of money. Are these things true? And if so is there no remedy?

What say our citizens and the patriotic and liberal farmers of Talladega?

Shall it be said that the soldier who leaves his home and little family to go forth and battle for this country, under goes all the hardships and exposure of the camp, and freely risks his life in defence of our common cause; cannot buy bread of those at home to feed his family?

It is true there are a few men in the country who have sold wheat to soldiers families at one and two dollars per bushel while others around them have been selling at five, six and even seven dollars per bushel.

Many think that the former ought not to be called on to sell at a reduced price unless other men of equal means in the country who have no grain to sell share an equal portion of the burden. Let tax then and let it fall alike upon all only don't let the whole burthen rest upon the Soldier. Let our citizens meet together and consider this matter. Let every man come up and give his opinion as to how this great evil should be remedied. Come together in a proper spirit and consider this question as friends and neighbors and let this be done before all the wheat in the country has been bought up and placed beyond the reach of those who should have at least a small portion of it.

This is an important matter. Every right thinking man must know that the soldiers family must have bread if you would keep him in the field.

Come up then gentlemen as men and patriots and attend the meeting and let some plan be devised to remedy the evils complained of.

Legislature Adjourned.

The Legislature adjourned on Saturday last after passing the new Militia Bill. The Bill we understand does not apply to the first second and third Congressional Districts.

The Militia age is extended from sixteen to sixty. There are to be two classes of the Militia. The boys from sixteen to seventeen and the men from fifty-five to sixty to constitute the first class. And to be organized for local and home defense within their own Counties.

Those from seventeen to forty five compose the second class and will constitute the regular militia. The old militia system is abolished for the present and the old militia officers of the State will hold their positions no longer.

There will be a Commandant of the Militia for each County and also a Commandant for each beat in the County.

We publish a synopsis of the bill clipped from the Montgomery Mail in another column which gives the leading features of the bill.

We understand that the first class including the boys and old men will be organized for police duty at home and that they will not be called off from their regular duties at home except in cases of emergency.

The News.

Charleston is still holding out. Sumter though reduced almost to a ruin and its walls crumbled down is still gallantly defending itself. We regret to learn from the dispatches of the associated press that one of our batteries through mistake fired upon one of our transports a few nights since and sunk it, killing wounding and drowning a number of the 23rd Georgia Regiment.

Public attention is now directed to East Tennessee Rosencrans is pressing his operations vigorously in the neighborhood of Knoxville, and also near Chattanooga. Gen. Bragg is fully advised of the importance of holding him in check and will doubtless take the necessary steps to resist his progress and thwart his designs. It is also stated that there are a large number of transports in the neighborhood of Pensacola and some apprehension is felt as to an attack on Mobile.

There is some reliable gentlemen news to the effect that Gen. Price has met with a defeat on the other side of the Mississippi.

See Prof. Samuel's School notice.

Talladega, August 28, 1863.

Mr. Editor:

In order to disclose the public mind of the false charges brought by unscrupulous people against your own citizens, and visitors among you who are buying wheat and flour for immediate sale in Mobile, I send you the following statement of facts (I indulge not in empty declamation) showing the cost of a barrel of flour calculated from the time it leaves the Mills in Talladega, to the hour of sale and delivery to the consumer at Mobile.

It is unjustly and wickedly promulgated by these same thoughtless people who evidently have more zeal than they have prudence and knowledge, that those who are engaged in the wheat and flour trade are enemies to the country; that they are starving the poor in Mobile by advancing the price of flour; and they are denounced by these same narrow minds as Speculators, as Extortioners, who are buying flour in Talladega at Twenty five and Thirty dollars a Barrel, and selling it for one hundred and Ten and Fifteen dollars at Mobile, by which a profit of seventy-five to eighty dollars a Barrel is realized; and these very wise, charitable people say, the Christian Ministry should apply the rod, that they should neither eat nor drink with such, that is, the Flour dealers should not be admitted to the Lord's Table!

Now sir for the facts in the case.—

The price of Flour at the Mills for a month past is	$50,00
Cost of sacks for a barrel of Flour,	4,70
Hauling to the R. R. Station,	,50
Freight to Selma,	1,10
Shipping and wharfage at Selma,	1,00
Freight to Mobile, wharfage and Drayage, Storage and labor Con.
Federate tax and Commissions,	9,56
Cost to the consumer at Mobile,	$66,44

On the 21st of July, the quotation for Extra brands was ninety five dollars; but in consequence of the seizure and detention of Flour, intended for Mobile, by the Military Authorities at Selma, the quotations were subsequently advanced to one hundred dollars; but the subsequent release of this same Four, and its appearance in the market, at Mobile, caused prices to recede, so that on the 13th of August Extra brands were quoted at ninety a ninety-five dollars, showing a profit only (according to the foregoing calculations) of Twenty-three dollars and Fifty-six cents a Twenty-eight dollars and Fifty-six cents on a Barrel, instead of Seventy-five a Eighty dollars as misrepresented.

Now how wide a difference there is between these statements, and the silly and false charge of buying up Flour at Twenty five and Thirty dollars a Barrel, and selling it for one hundred and Ten and Fifteen dollars, by which a profit of from Seventy five to Eighty dollars a Barrel is realized!

Any one Sir, acquainted with the laws of trade knows very well that the supply and the demand regulate the prices of articles of commerce, and hence it follows from the above statements, that if any are chargable with advancing prices, and starving the poor in Mobile, they are the Farmer and the Military Authorities, the farmer for advancing the prices of Flour, and the latter for placing such restrictions upon it as to prevent it from going to Mobile as an article of commerce. This is the condition at this moment, of Flour at Jemison's Mills, that was intended for the Mobile market; and I understand it is only released where satisfactory evidence is shown that it is intended for the use of a Family. Now Sir, is it expected that every head of a family shall go three or four hundred miles in the country for his supply of Flour, even though it were convenient, and practicable? Who is there so ignorant as not to know that the heavy Steamboat and R. Road charges, and Hotel Bills, and horse hire at Five dollars a day would make the Flour so costly as to place it entirely beyond the reach of any but such as are in affluent circumstances?

And does not the man who sends down for sale, a hundred Barrels of Flour, supply as many and perhaps a greater number of families—for all are not able to buy a Barrel at once—who by reason of expense and inconvenience cannot go to the country?

It is a well known fact sir, that the citizens of Mobile suffered severely, from high prices, last year, by a silly Military order which prevented the rich products of Mississippi from flowing into that city.—Corn of which there was a plenty in Mississippi, and which finally fell in the hands of the Federal enemy, commanded five and six dollars a bushel at Mobile!

No sensible and just man will cry out speculation and extortion when an article of commerce is sent to market at its cost, at once, for the market rates. This clearly does not constitute Speculation and Extortion. Nor can a party be correctly charged with either unless he stores his commodities for higher prices, or refuses to sell at the prevailing rates. The writer knows of no instance where wheat or flour has been bought up to be stored away for an advance in prices.

I would here state that when the Flour market first opened in Talladega, July the first, wheat was at four dollars a bushel which is equal to twenty-four dollars a Barrel for Extra Flour; but it very soon went up to six dollars and fifty cents, and eight dollars, which is equal to Forty and Fifty dollars for Extra brands.

I would state, also, that as great are the risks attending transportation to Mobile, at this time, that no one can afford to engage in shipping without being well remunerated for it. Steamboat men and Rail Road men are alike irresponsible and laugh at your losses. And besides, the Flour which cost the trader sixty-six dollars delivered at Mobile may be sold at a heavy loss by reason of a decline in prices.

Very Respectfully

CHARLES H. WILLIAMS.

P. S.—I have just been informed that Flour has dropped down, at Mobile, to seventy-nine dollars a Barrel.

I have just been informed by Capt. M. D. Allen who has just returned from Mobile—where he went to see Genl. Maury, and the chief of subsistance in relation to the seizure and detention of his flour at Jemison's Mills, that it was done without warrant of authority, and that instructions have been given for the immediate release of the flour. When will Government officials know their duty and learn to perform it? The country is disgusted and tired of Military blunders, and has great cause to be so.

Your obt Servt
